DRAPER, UT – September 19, 2007 – NLU Products, L.L.C., the developer of scratch-proof, transparent skins for mobile devices under the ScreenGuardz and BodyGuardz brand names, today announced the organization has met the criteria for certification as a Women's Business Enterprise (WBE). The certification has been given to NLU Products, which is based in Draper, Utah, by the Women's Business Enterprise Council-West, in partnership with the national organization, the Women's Business Enterprise National Council (WBENC). The certification is one of the most highly-recognized and respected in the country.

"We are very pleased to have earned the certification from WBENC," said April Feller of NLU Products, L.L.C. "Their organization has served as a strong advocate for women's businesses serving as suppliers to corporate America, and we are proud to be recognized by them."

NLU Products L.L.C. was founded in 2002 and began as a small home office operation marketing a line of screen protectors for a limited number of PDA's. The company has since grown into an organization that provides protection products to users throughout the world, offering protection for over 700 different devices including cell phones, PDA's, media players, notebook computers, gaming devices, cameras, GPS devices and more. NLU Products is most well-known for the ScreenGuardz brand of screen protectors, and also markets products under the BodyGuardz brand name. The products, which are custom-designed and precision-cut for each device, are made of a clear film that covers the screens and body of the devices, providing scratch protection from outside elements. The products are currently sold through online resellers, retailers, and corporate partners throughout the world.

In order to qualify for certification under the WBENC, NLU Products had to satisfy rigorous and stringent criteria which represent a national standard for women-owned businesses. The
